11:45 – 12:15 pm BB132	Lunchtime Meditation Session: Training the Mind with Sound in Meditation Professor Josh Arduengo, Chair, Mindfulness Committee Training the mind to be fully aware at all times is no easy task. Often times, people seeking more focused attention in their life are unsure how to train their minds and may fall victim to over-complication or mystification. This leads to frustration and no real progress towards a more focused mind is achieved. In this session, I will teach you a technique for training your mind to be more present using sound as our object of meditation. This technique is simple to understand and easy to apply wherever you are.
12:20 – 2:00 pm Conference Center Main Room	CRASE (Civilian Response to Active Shooter Events) Training Collin College Police Department Instructors: Lt. Don Mewbourn; Sgt. Harlan Thompson; Officer Ryon Baeza; Officer Michael Czawlytko; Officer Daniel Woods; Officer Yussef Willoughby; Officer Kenneth Budjenska The Civilian Response to Active Shooter Events (CRASE) course provides strategies, guidance, and a proven plan for surviving an active shooter event. Topics include the history and prevalence of active shooter events, civilian response options, medical issues, and considerations for conducting drills.
